ABOUT BRAF

Every September, over 30,000 high-income art enthusiasts from the Washington, DC Metro Area and its surrounding suburbs, including Bethesda, Chevy Chase, and Upper Northwest, flock to the Bethesda Row Arts Festival. With an average household income of $196,910 within a three-mile radius of the festival, it stands as one of the nation's most affluent and educated art marketplaces.

Renowned among artists, the Bethesda Row Arts Festival is often regarded as one of the top ten events in the country. It's a highly competitive event, and the quality of all artwork presented must be exceptional, showcasing the highest creativity and skill levels.

This festival is not suitable for first-time exhibitors or those who haven't participated in similar events.

HOW TO APPLY

The application process begins on January 15, 2025, at bethesdarowarts.org. In addition to general information like name, address, and contact details, applicants must submit four digital images of their artwork and one image of their booth or sales display. Please note that the booth or sales image is only used to verify previous experience with similar shows and is not a factor in the application scoring process.

The application is reviewed by a panel of judges composed of working artists and full-time art professionals. The images are reviewed anonymously by jurors online. Artists are identified by a number and judged solely based on the digital images submitted. Each image is displayed in a row, providing information about the materials, dimensions, and artist statements.

The jury uses a rating scale of 1 through 5, with 1 indicating "do not consider" and 5 indicating "a perfect fit." The three jury scores are averaged to determine a combined score. The jury's decisions are final. Approximately 180 top applicants receive invitations, while about three dozen of the next highest-scoring artists form the waitlist.

Invitations are sent out, and artists have two weeks to respond. After the two-week deadline, all invitations are no longer guaranteed, and invitations are also extended to the waitlist. At this point, the first artist to respond is guaranteed a spot until all available booth spaces are filled.
